The first Chinese to enter Houston were 250 men coming in 1870 to do construction work. The Daily Houston Telegraph, in January of that year, stated that 247 Chinese docked in Galveston and went onwards in the region. The 1877 Houston City Directory listed three ethnic Chinese who worked in laundries, and the 1880 United States Census, the first to count the Chinese in Houston, showed 7 Chinese

Even so, a relatively large group of Chinese immigrated to the United States between the start of the California gold rush in 1849 and 1882, when federal law stopped their immigration. With the onset of hard economic times in the 1870s, European immigrants and Americans began to compete for the jobs traditionally reserved for the Chinese.

Abstract. China is an important test case for the debate about the impact of advanced capitalist countries upon less developed ones. This chapter focuses narrowly upon the issue of growth of the 'productive forces', and does not attempt any assessment of or judgement about the political, cultural or social impact of Western 'imperialism' except in so far as these affect economic growth.
